

Jews, alone or with their families, heading to Babyn Yar. Drawings by the artist and ethnographer Yurii Pavlovych (Kyiv, September 1941).

Vasyl Ovchynnykov: Babyn Yar, triptych, 1947

Yosef Kozakovskyi: People Transported for Execution (Babyn Yar), 1948

Feliks Lemberskyi: Babi Yar, 1952

Boris Prorokov: Near Babi Yar
(from the series This Should Not Happen Again!), 1959.

Vadym Sydur:
Babyn Yar, 1966.

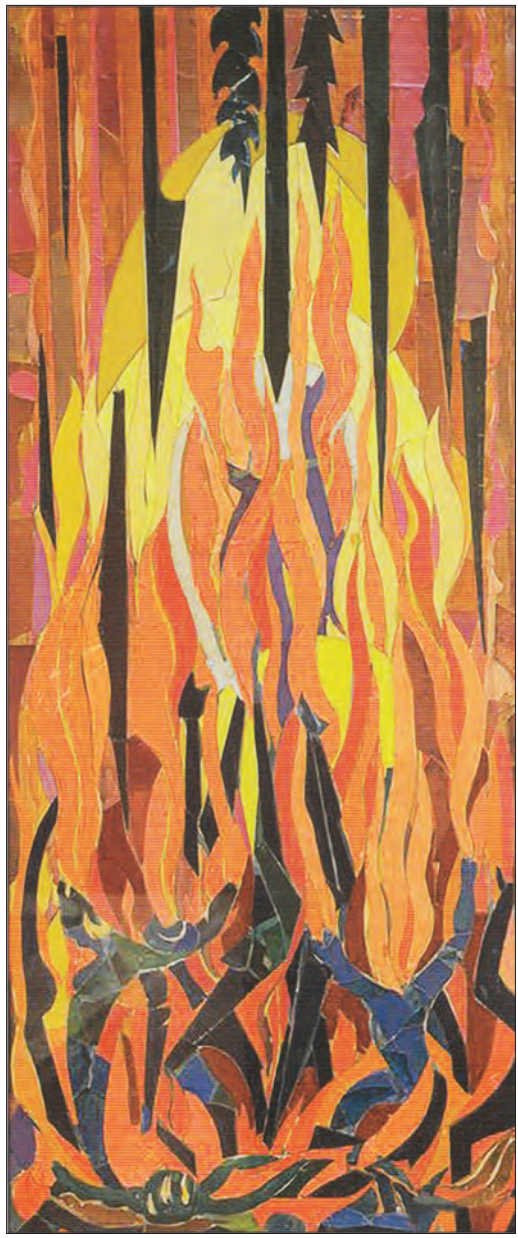

Sava Brodsky:
Illustration to Anatoly Kuznetsov's novel Babi Yar, 1966.

Aleksandr Tikhomirov: Babi Yar, 1960s.

Hryhorii Synytsia: Babyn Yar, 1972

Efim Simkin: Before the Shootings in Babyn Yar, 1980.

Mykhailo Turovskyi: Babyn Yar, 1980s.

Mykhailo Zviahyn: Babi Yar, 1980s.

Ilya Kleiner: Babi Yar, 1991.

Isaak Tartakovskii: The Tears of Babyn Yar, 1992.

Tetiana Ilyina,
The Ravine, 1997.

Ada Rybachuk and Volodymyr Melnychenko before their tapestry: When the World Collapses, 1990s.

Hernadii Gold: Eternal Call (Babyn Yar), 2000.

Olha Novak: Dorohozhychi Subway Station, 2014.

Competition for the Design of a Babyn Yar monument, 1965

Competition designs at the House of Artists (Kyiv).

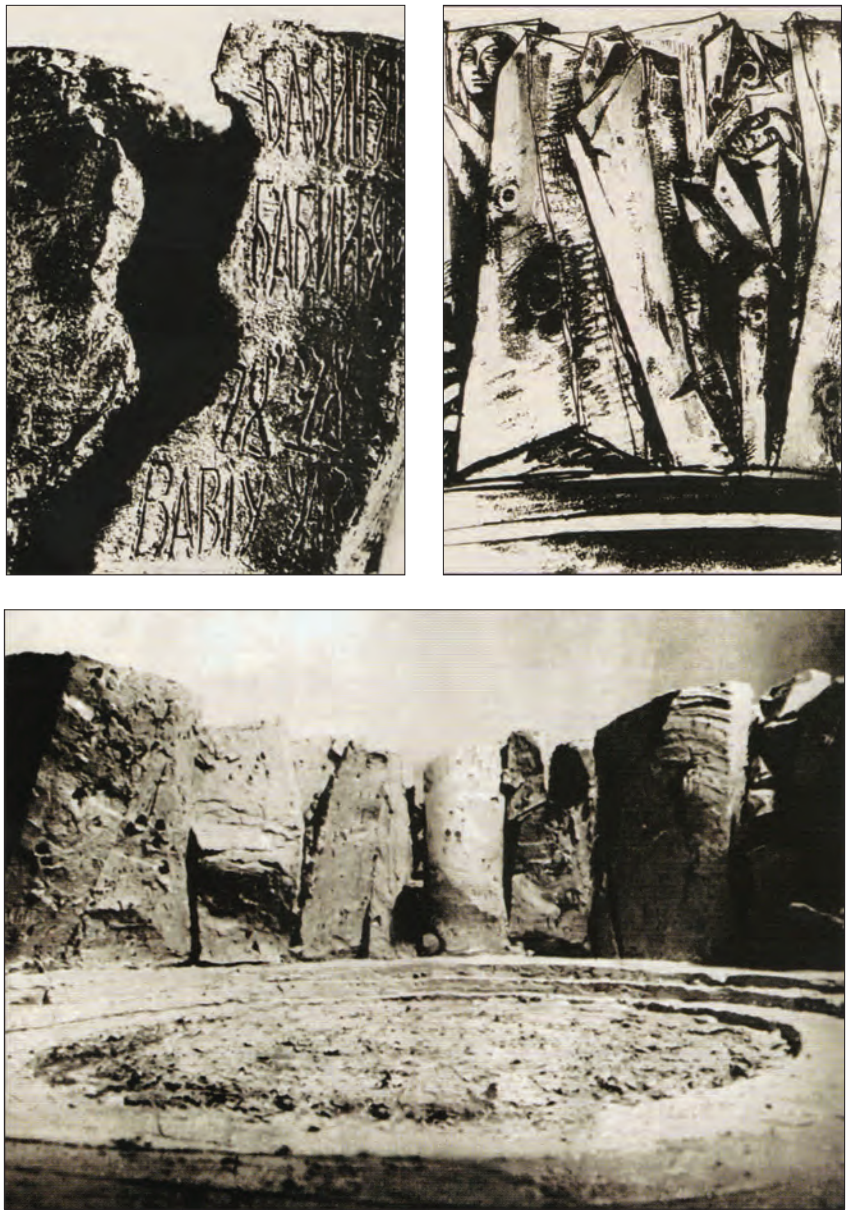

Competition designs at the House of Artists (Kyiv).

Yosyf Karakis's design

Zinovii Tolkachov's frescoes (for Yosyf Karakis's design).

Ada Rybachuk and Volodymyr Melnychenko's design entitled
When the World Collapses: Babyn Yar.

Monument "To the Soviet citizens and captured soldiers and officers of the Soviet Army shot by the German occupiers in Babyn Yar," 1976.

The Menorah monument dedicated to the memory of the Jewish victims shot in Babyn Yar, 1991.

